

Races were plain sailing for mariners

YOUNG sailors descended on Enfield last weekend to compete in the London Youth Open.

Competition was fierce as more than 60 racers from across the capital, aged between nine and 19-years-old, competed in a series of events on Saturday.

The competition, held on the King George V Reservoir, part of the Lee Valley Reservoir, was hosted by King George Sailing Club, in Lea Valley Road, billed as north London's premier windsurfing venue and ideal for casual and competitive sailors alike.

Ahoy there: sailors aged between nine and 19 competed in the London Youth Open on Saturday